

Individual DIAdem and LabVIEW training – now also remote

When solving complex tasks, it helps to have competent experts at your side. That is exactly what we offer with our individual training courses and application support.

Either on site at your premises or remotely, we provide you with tailor-made know-how for your specific needs.

To your company or your home office, we deliver

- a broad spectrum of solutions with NI DIAdem and LabVIEW as well as other hardware and software (TwinCAT, databases, a wide variety of bus systems ...)
- exclusive time with our experienced users for you and your employees.

You can choose from a variety of training topics, which we prepare for you using standard examples or based on your own tasks and data from your daily work. We do not work through predefined solutions schematically, but give participants room for their own approaches and bring these together into optimized concepts at the end.

Personal, fast and individual. Learn what you need, when it suits you. The choice is yours – by the hour or by the day, anything is possible.

It's that simple:

- In an initial meeting, we tailor the training content to your needs together with you. We jointly define a time frame and submit a non-binding offer for your individual seminar.
- We prepare individual digital training materials on the agreed content.
- We conduct your training using the remote access software used in your company.
- We send you the training materials created for you in digital form, supplemented by the results of the dialog with the participants.

Of course, our training courses can also take place at your premises as usual.

Training packages could look like this:

Mini	Midi	Maxi
• Duration: 4 hours • Concrete answers and assistance for your individual questions • Available via remote access • Individually prepared for you	• Duration: 1 day • Individually compiled tasks from our topic catalog • Concrete answers and assistance for your individual questions • Available via remote access • Individually prepared for you	• Duration: up to 4 days • Complete topic days from our topic catalog • Concrete answers and assistance for your individual questions • Available via remote access or at your premises • Individually prepared for you

Of course, the above variants can also be combined as required. Let us tailor your remote or on-site seminar to your needs together.

We look forward to hearing from you.
